Please join us in a conversation with Una Chaudhuri (Dean for the Humanities at New York University), Beth Osnes (Associate Professor of Theatre at University of Colorado Boulder), and Kathy Randels (Founder and Artistic Director of ArtSpot Productions), moderated by Weston Twardowski (Program Manager, Diluvial Houston Initiative at Rice University).

How do artists advocate for environmental justice, connect us to the environment, and educate publics on climate change? Three leading interdisciplinary artists discuss their work with a range of audiences (including youth activists) working to build an understanding of our planet through artmaking.
